“ No words.....there are are no words to adequately express my thoughts. Too soon; too tragic; too unjust. I may not have known Danny as well as his immediate family, but I knew this: He loved his wife; he loved his sons; his daughter-in-laws; and he loved his grandchildren. I remember him pulling those grand babies in a wagon behind his mower and just beaming. His grandson, Jasper, once told me that Danny Sr. and I (the other grandmother) were the wisest people he knew. Danny Sr., spread that wisdom from above. Your grandchildren will hear. Valerie, call on me. I am here for you.
