“ This beautiful, young lady is my Grandma. She was a caring, compassionate, and a brilliant women. I could always talk to her about everything and she would know just what to say. My Grandma always gave the best advise and made everything okay again. She could always make me smile or laugh if I was having a rough day. One of the best highlights was getting to talk to my Grandma everyday, sometimes two times a day. Everyone who met and knew my Grandma fell in love with her.

Even though I want my Grandma back, I am happy that she no longer in pain. I am grateful that I also got to talk to my Grandma that Sunday before she passed. I am also grateful that my husband and I were able to go visit her and my Grandpa in June (2015).

Even though it was a short visit and Grandma was in the hospital. It meant more then words could ever define getting to see my Grandparents. I didn't get to visit my Grandparents as much as I would have liked over the years, but I love them both unconditionally.

I know that my Grandma is watching over my Grandpa and I right now, and I know one day we'll get to see her again. Until then, you will be in our thoughts and prayers always.

I love and miss you Grandma,
You're Granddaughter,
Cassandra, "Pumpkin Brewster"
